ARGENTINA

Both Varroa and EFB continue to be problems for beekeepers in Argentina. Evidently Varroa is bad enough in some areas that colonies are dying. On the other hand, in other parts of the country beekeepers say European Foulbrood is much more of a problem. Apparently tracheal mites are not a big problem for most of the country's beekeepers, although mites are detectable in most colonies.

Frosts hurt flowering of honey plants in parts of the country and drought has also been a problem. Beekeepers are now coming into their summer season. •
